FORK BALL KEEPS BUSH OUT OF BUSH LEAGUES

BY BILLY EVANS

Brain is as great if not greater than brawn when it comes to pitching.

For a stout of that theory the career of Pitcher Joe Bush of the Boston Red Sox is submitted for your consideration.

Bush was the sensational comeback of the 1921 season in the American League after a lot of experts said he was through.

Joe Bush fooled the experts because he called on his brain power, after his physical resources began to fail him.

Because of his terrific speed, Bush early in his career was called "Bullet Joe." No nick-name could have possibly been more appropriate.

Bush almost from his debut was a success. His fast ball was his main asset. Instead of conserving his strength, Joe always went at top speed regardless of the score.

Almost out of a clear sky Joe discovered that the old fast ball was losing some of its "zip." Batters who once were easy for him began to take liberties with his stuff.

That caused Bush to decide that a pitcher needed more than speed if he was to continue for any great length of time as a big leaguer. At just about the time Joe reached such a decision he began to have trouble with his arm.

Had a Very Bad Arm.

The season of 1919 found Bush almost useless. He was unable to throw without suffering great pain. The old speed was no longer there. He consulted many of the specialists, but received little or no benefit. Complete rest was usually prescribed as a possible cure.

During the season of 1919 Bush worked only nine innings, scattered through three games. However, he was in uniform most every day, keeping himself as physically fit as possible.

Plenty of time to think and reflect caused Bush to do some experimenting. Since he suffered great pain, every time he tried to throw a fast ball, Bush practiced through the year throwing a slow ball with a fast ball motion. It was possible for him to so throw without any inconvenience.

Developed New Delivery.

Bush carried the experiment even further, he developed what he calls a "fork ball." He has so named it because of the peculiar way he holds the ball between his fingers before delivering it to the batter.

The season of rest seemed to restore strength to Bush's arm. He worked more than 30 games in 1920, but was unable to get better than an even break, winning and losing 15.

Bush couldn't get the old stuff on the fast one. Because of the difficulty in controlling the fork ball, Bush didn't use it during 1920, but constantly worked with it to develop control.

After working for nearly three years mastering the new delivery, Bush started to use it in the early summer of 1921. Batters soon objected saving Bush was using a spitball, which he had no right to do. The umpires however knew such was not the case. The "fork ball" breaks very much like a spitball.

Had Big Season in 1921.

The season of 1921 was a big year for Bush after a lot of people thought he was done as a big leaguer. His success was centered around the "fork ball." This ball, coupled with his curve and fast one, with a change of pace thrown in, made Bush over into a new style pitcher.

Instead of depending on terrific speed Bush stood the batters on their heads by mixing them up. Bush is again a great pitcher because he refused to give up when gloom was thickest.

When nature weakened on him, he called on his brain for assistance.

The "fork ball" is a most deceptive delivery. It has given Bush a threat, which he constantly holds over the batter. The "fork ball" was the result of three years of effort. It was worth while.

Billy Evans Says

During the progress of the recent major league meetings in New York the front page and the sport page of the newspapers were filled with the testimony in the trial involving the racehorse Playfellow.

Playfellow is a full brother of the famous Man of War. That, of course was a big boost for Playfellow. Figuring the dope, one would naturally think was wrong with that particular player.

It seemed that no one wanted to have a windsucker or a cribber slip on him. That, perhaps, explains the lure for several trades to go through.

It surprised me if within the number of the deals, meetings were put over.

As a "fall" up the action at the

SPORT ANGLE

Joe Bush of 1921-22 comes up as a baseball mag-and he wants to work club and in the make "Babe's" salary season $50,000, a nasty figure months work

One behind Ruth comes Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis with the announcement that he wants $75,000 and a three-year contract.

Not so many years ago the yearly payroll of a major league ball club didn't amount to much more than Ruth and Hornsby demand.

Both are big stars, they deserve all they can get. If they are able to far the magnates loose for such amounts, they must be given a lot of credit.

Next in line is Eddie Rousch, the star outfielder of the Cincinnati club. Rousch's ideas are not as extravagant as Ruth or Hornsby.

The Cincinnati star asks for $45,000 a year, with a three-year contract. The demands of Ruth, Hornsby and Rousch are the result of the wide publicity that has been given the alleged profits in baseball.

Garry Herrmann, the president of the Cincinnati club, is the first one to come to bat on the subject. While the magnates were convening in New York, Herrmann told the world what he thought about Rousch's demand.

"Rousch will neither be sold nor traded," says Garry, "no matter how many clubs are anxious to get him. His demands are out of proportion with the earnings of the club. We intend placing Rousch on our voluntarily retired list. He will stay on his farm. If he expects us to pay such a salary. That is why we secured George Burns, knowing we would have trouble with Rousch."

So says Garry Herrmann, and he usually means what he says. All of which brings us back to the fact that the wisdom of Ban Johnson is again being felt.

Three or four years ago Mr. Johnson said disgruntled players should be forced to play with their clubs, or stay at home. However, Mr. Johnson's advice was disregarded, much to the detriment of the game.—B. E.

CENTER'S CRACK TEAM HAS THREE GREAT STARS

McMILLIN (LEFT), ARMSTRONG (TOP) AND ROBERTS

BY BILLY EVANS

The three dominating factors in the success of Center College during the 1921 season were: Bo' McMillin, Captain Armstrong and "Red" Roberts.

Bo' McMillin stands out as one of the greatest college players of all time. He is probably the best defensive quarterback in the game. On the offense he also ranks well up among the leaders.

If there were any quarterbacks who had anything on him offensively, they were Devine of Iowa and Kullinger of Penn State. Devine was the sensation of the west. Kullinger greatest running back in the east.

In the Harvard game, Center was victorious largely through the efforts of McMillin, ably assisted by Roberts. McMillin's dash of twenty-two yards off tackle, and then through a broken field, was one of the greatest plays of the year, despite the shortness of the run. It scored the touchdown that beat Harvard.

McMillin is one of the best "threat" players of the year. He is a wonder at throwing the forward pass, can cleverly skirt the ends or slide off tackle, and is a good punter. When he drops back to handle the ball, the opposition is always up in the air.

In the Harvard game, McMillin demonstrated his worth as a field general. In 1920 Center had shown Harvard a forward passing game that for two periods made all kinds of trouble.

The line, however, was not up to the Harvard standard. When the line collapsed, the Harvard forwards were able to sift through and break up the passing game.

This year Harvard expected the same style of play. Center had used such a system in all the games previous to the Harvard contest. Coach Moran, realizing his weakness of the year previous, had paid special attention to his line. Harvard found it a stone wall. Instead of using the forward pass constantly, McMillin dropped back as it to hurt the ball, and then either skirted the end or went off tackle.

"Red" Roberts has been equally valuable to Center. His end play has been almost perfection. He has all kinds of endurance, and seems to finish as strong as he started.

In the Harvard game, Buell of Princeton was criticized for directing so many plays against Roberts. It was undeserved criticism. Roberts figured in so many plays, not so much because of the direction of the attack but due to Roberts' ability to sense the play and cover so much ground.

While Captain Armstrong has not been as sensational as either McMillin or Roberts, he has played a fine brand of football and proved a most capable leader.

College Chatter

Yale will play 10 football games next year. All of them will be staged at the Yale bowl, with the exception of the Princeton game. This will be the first season in years that Yale has played more than nine games.

It will be a family affair when Iowa meets Yale at New Haven on the 14th of next October. Howard and Tad are expected to continue coaching at the two institutions.

Not a single football team of any prominence went through the season of 1921 without being scored on. In the old days before the forward pass, it was not at all uncommon for several of the crack teams to go through the season without being scored on.

So strong a team as Penn State was scored on in six of its ten games.

The Iowa eleven of next year will hardly be as formidable as the 1921 team. Howard Jones will lose four of his best players, Belting, Slater and the two Devine brothers.

Muller of California is unquestionably a great end. However, it is hard to figure how he can receive much consideration as an All-American possibility. He was hurt in the game of Oct. 1 with the University of Nevada, and has done little playing since.

BATTERS, TAKE A TIP FROM HEINE GROH!

HEINE GROH

BY BILLY EVANS

They say if you are a star, you are bound to be different.

If you are not temperamental, as a great many stars are, you must have a style that differs from the ordinary "critter."

Heine Groh has every right to be classed as a star on that basis. However, Groh has great natural ability, plus a quick thinking brain, which really entitles him to such ranking.

No great, or even good hitter in the history of the game, takes a position in the batter's box that in any way shapes up with that of Groh.

When a batter steps into the box, it is often said that he faces the pitcher. That goes literally for Groh. He stands directly facing the pitcher, with bat on the shoulder or waving in front of him. He whirls suddenly when the pitcher delivers the ball, and steps into it, much the same as the ordinary batter.

Groh's stance is most peculiar. However, it is very effective, as Groh always bats around 300. He claims his style prevents weakness on curve balls, as it gives the batsman no chance to pull away from the plate. Rather it forces him to step directly into the ball.

Groh is far from being a youngster. He is 34 years of age. It hardly seems possible that he has over five years more of service in him. That makes the price paid all the more astounding.

Groh is small in stature, being about five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds.

He is regarded as one of the best place hitters in baseball. This makes him invaluable in the hit and run play, a style used so much by McGraw.

In Frankie Frisch and Heine Groh, McGraw now has the two star third sackers in the National League. Some say he will shift Frisch to second. It is just as probable Groh will play that base.

OFFICIAL AMERICAN LEAGUE PITCHING RECORDS SEASON 1921

Compiled by Irwin M. Howe, Chicago.

Pitching honors for the season went to Urban C. Faber, the White Sox veteran, who allowed by 2.48 runs for each nine innings. Faber worked 831 innings before he was laid out with an injury and fewer runs were scored by opponents against Chicago while he pitched than were earned off of the second best regular, George Mogridge, of Washington, who had a sparkling season. The Chicago star was credited with twenty-five victories and charged with fifteen defeats, a winning average of .625 though his team finished in seventh place.

Carl Mays and Waite Hoyt, co-stars of the champion Yankees, were third and fourth, respectively, among the regulars with averages of 3.03 and 3.10. Mays led in percentage of games won with an average of 750, his record reading, 27-9. Urban Shocker, of St. Louis also won 27 games but lost 12 for a record of .692. Mays also led in actual work, hurling 337 innings, six more than Faber.

Urban Shocker, great spit-ball hurler of the St. Louis Browns, won nine straight games in August and finished the season with a record of 27-12 for an average of .691. Davis of the same team pitched and won a nineteen inning contest from Washington in which only one man reached first base in the last nine rounds. Sam Jones and Joe Bush of Boston, Edwin Rommel, Philadelphia and S. Coveleskie of Cleveland all were effective despite the lively ball while two young south-paws, Cole of Detroit and Bayne of St. Louis were almost unbeatable during the final month of the season.

Most of the pitchers found it very difficult to cope with the great slug-gers of the league and the hurling, as a whole, was far less effective than in any previous year. As a result shut out victories and games of few hits were conspicuous by their rarity and strike out records of former years were not approached by the most successful of the twirlers.

SPORT ANGLE

It is impossible to estimate what the loss of Ruth means to the New York Yankees and the American League.

The inability of Ruth to play until May 29, may prevent the New York club from repeating as the American League pennant winner.

The presence of Ruth in the New York lineup, is most important to the success of the club. His real value to the Yankees was made apparent in the recent world series.

Without Ruth the Yankees lack the tremendous punch that he supplies. His absence likewise removes the big threat. With him out, opposing pitchers have nothing to worry about.

It is very conservative to say that Ruth's absence from the game will cost the Yankees $100,000 in real money. The other seven clubs will lose between them an equal amount.

The three eastern clubs, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, will be the heaviest sufferers. These teams play against the New York team during the first month of play.

With Ruth out of the lineup the gate is going to suffer heavily. Ruth is the big card. Without him the Yankees are going to lose a lot of color. There is always much interest in his spring showing, as compared to his efforts of the previous year.

If the Yankees get away to a bad start in the spring, due to the absence of Ruth, the effect is going to be felt throughout the year.

It will mean that the New York club will suffer to a much greater extent than $100,000. That amount was merely figured on the spring games which would be played without him in the lineup.

If his absence is the cause of the Yankees losing the pennant, and thereby the right to play in the series, the damage becomes all the greater.

Ruth will be missed in more ways than one, on the field, at the gate, in the sport sheets.

Six Suggestions To Improve Basketball

BY BILLY EVANS

Basketball has plenty of action, just so long as the referee keeps the whistle out of his mouth.

It seems agreed that the foul rule is one feature of the game that can stand some wise legislation.

Ward Brennan, one of the leading basketball officials, comes to the bat with some interesting suggestions.

Brennan has been connected with basketball for 18 years as a player, coach, and official. Aside from his duties as referee in the Eastern League, the big league of basketball, he is coaching Pratt Institute as a side issue.

"Too much foul throwing by an expert in that one particular play kills off the action," Brennan is very definite on that point. He has a very unique idea to minimize fouling.

His suggestion is that when a player commits a foul that player shall make a try for a basket from the foul line. If he makes it, his team shall be eliminated from any penalty. If he misses, his opponent shall be credited with two points if the foul is personal and one point if technical.

Six Valuable Suggestions

Here are six suggestions from Brennan worthy of consideration.

That the center circle radius be made 3 feet, instead of the present one which is 2 feet.

Time Outs: Each team shall be allowed four time-outs of one minute durations. Two times out in each half.

Free Throw: When a foul is called the referee shall immediately secure the ball, and instruct the player who made the foul to throw for goal from the foul line. If goal is made, the penalty is eliminated. If missed, the opponent shall be given 3 points if the foul committed was personal, and one point if technical.

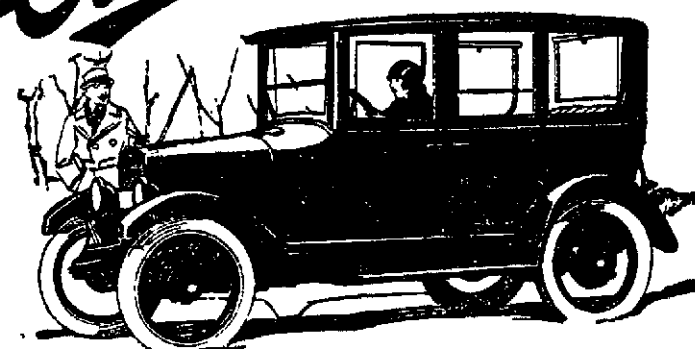

Field Goals: A goal from the field shall count 3 points.

Time out: Time to be taken out when a foul is called, and play to begin again when ball leaves player's hands while on the foul line.

Center Ball: On the toss-up at center, the men jumping should not be allowed to play the ball until it is again played by another player, or has hit the floor.

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 28—If you were born to wealth and position—Would you give them up and bury yourself in a half-savage land ministering to the physical and spiritual needs of the people?

That's what Miss Vera Adamson, daughter of Alexander Adamson, wealthy Akron manufacturer, is doing.

She's a missionary in the Philippines. She's entitled to a salary of $1,000 a year, but doesn't accept it. She's the only missionary of her denomination who pays her own expenses.

Miss Adamson is principal of a girls' training school on the island of Luzon. She's been there five years—since she was 25.

Very much puffed and very much waved are the coils one sees under feminine hats along Fifth Avenue. New York is apparently not interested in flat smooth coiffing at this moment.

SCHOOL NOTICE.

Patrons of the school will please take notice that the 2nd semester of school work begins on the morning of Monday, Jan. 23, and not immediately after holidays, as is frequently supposed. First grade beginners may enter at that time provided each child is 6 years of age or will be prior to June 1st.

YOU, THE CREATOR

George Pullman's first Pullman sleeping car was so crude that hatchet and nails had to be used in making up the berths.

Pullman's friends, who took the first trip, awakened next morning, fagged out and aching as if they had been prize-fighting all night.

After that first trip, which still is remembered vividly by many now living, Pullman's idea was a source of merriment.

All inventions and ideas are crude when they are born. No matter how brilliant your idea, infinite patience is needed, along with much burning of midnight oil, before the crude idea is evolved into polished near-perfection.

The rounded corners of Pullman car vestibules were conceived by a porter. He had wearied of being the target for the wrath of passengers who had struck violently on the former sharp corners when the train rounded a curve.

Porters for many years patiently took the kick of passengers who had their clothes splashed with water that lurched out of Pullman car wash basins. Then a porter got the idea of projecting the top edges of the wash basins inward, so that the water was not apt to lurch out, no matter how roughly the train rode.

In an almost infinite number of details, the Pullman car was improved by the porters until today it is probable that porters have had more to do with giving us the Pullman palace car than the original inventor.

The man who uses a device knows more about it than the man who originated it.

Nearly every contrivance that we use in civilization is the result of the combined effort of thousands of minds.

For instance, the steam engine. In various crude forms it existed for thousands of years. Then James Watt perfected it to the point where it was useful—and got the credit as its inventor. The others are forgotten, but their service to humanity was nearly as great as Watt's.

All humans have the creative instinct, the desire to build and improve.

The only life that really is worth while is the one that contributes to the progress of humanity. That is the real success.

SKIRTS

The girls on Broadway are wearing their skirts as short as ever.

On Fifth avenue, New York, an ankle-length skirt is occasional. Most of the paraders are wearing them 16 inches off the ground, though the new ones are coming in eight inches longer than that, reflecting present fashion in Paris.

This will interest many women who are hearing that "they're wearing 'em longer in the east." We don't always hear correctly in this world.

IRON

Production of pig iron this year in United States will total about 16,300,000 tons, compared with 30,966,162 tons in 1913. Quite a drop.

Yet iron production in England and France is still lower than our rate. And Germany, which made 19,309,172 tons of pig iron in 1913, will make only 8,000,000 tons in 1921.

Despite depression, we are better off in America than any other country. Iron and steel are the barometers of general business conditions.

GAMBLERS

A membership on the New York stock exchange sold the other day for $95,000. The price had advanced $16,000 in less than three weeks.

Brokers evidently think the picking is going to be good.

The new price is within $20,000 of the highest ever—$115,000 in 1920.

After every panic in the past, the surest sign of approaching boom-times was an advance in prices for concessions in the national gambling house.

EXPLOITERS

Gigantic untapped wealth is contained in 400,000,000 acres of land in the public domain—still owned by Uncle Sam. This wealth includes coal, oil, chemicals, water power and forests in amazing figures.

Total worth how much? A trifle of $150,000,000,000, says the annual report of the secretary of the interior. He adds that, when these resources are developed by private capital, Uncle Sam will get $12,387,500,000 in royalties, rents, etc.

What is your most pleasant memory? What do you look back to as the greatest event in your life? What is it that you turn to, in the past, to cheer you when you are down at the mouth? Memory is man's greatest wealth. Memory atones for defeat. It sweetens the bitterness of present failure. It destroys the glamour of ill-gotten wealth. It illumines, with rosy colors, the drab and dreary now. Memory is to life what the aurora borealis is in the black night of the far north. If you are rich in memories, your life has been worth while.

Young Stephen McKenna writes a book, "While I Remember." It smashes the established precedent that only old men are competent to write memoirs.

McKenna's memoirs are not of his own actions. They deal with the famous men and events with which he has come in contact. Such is one of the finest possible memories.

The privilege of being able to recall association with strong characters, mighty or humble, is a treasure that goes with us to the grave.

Like the rest of us, McKenna may want to revise his memoirs when he views them with the perspective of old age.

Youth lives in the present—in dreams. Old age lives in the past—in memories.

Now is the season of memories. The coming of the new year stirs the ashes of the past, re-creating flames of recollection.

As the year closes, you look back to memories of pleasant things like friendships, loves, noble deeds and strokes of fortune.

With such memories, a man can retain a certain happiness though he lose his job, wealth, friends, loved ones, or be alone in the desert.

Moosehide Feivey, who made a million in the Yukon and squandered it, said, "I'd rather have the memories than the gold."

Memory is the one thing you can never escape.

What are you doing today that will be pleasant to remember or worth remembering in years to come? What are you storing in memory that you later will want to forget?

The secret of a happy life is to accumulate steadily a storehouse of precious, worth-while memories.

LIFE FUTILE WITHOUT LOVE

David Belasco, at a dinner celebrating his 40th year as a theatrical producer, says, with the mellowness of age:

"In all these years it stands to reason that I must have learned something, and it is this—it took years to learn it, and it takes but a moment to say it: Love is the only thing that matters, the one thing that counts. It is the only thing that tells in the long run. Nothing else endures to the end."

Love is more than a sentiment. It is the basis of endeavor, the generator of current that keeps us battling upward.

Man guards closely his money wealth. Often he is careless of that greatest treasure, love. Like the orchid, it is delicate, fragile, easily destroyed.

Are you doing your utmost to preserve and intensify the love that is directing your life?

LEADERS

Outdoor men are the ones that have built and run our country since it started, says Dan Beard, pioneer trail-maker of frontier days.

Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Roosevelt were products of the great outdoors. Also Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison, inveterate campers.

Leadership requires hardy men. The greatest brain is shackled without a strong body to back it. You want to develop real power? Outdoor life will triple your current.

WHEN CHINA WAKES

China, we are told frequently, is a sleeping giant; when she wakes, there will be something doing. But we don't believe this—not very much. If we did we should be more concerned with the question of how a sleeping giant is going to act when he wakes and finds that one of the most interesting things that is going on in the world to which he has been asleep is the squabble over who was to have the right of picking his pockets.

What China would find if she woke up tomorrow, and that means what China is gradually having impressed on her, is that the peoples of the dominant race have never learned how to arrange the world so that they should not squabble among themselves, while their attitude toward other races has been that they should be very thankful for anything they're allowed to keep. For diversion, so it is possible the waking giant might view it, they talk about treating other peoples as you would like to be treated yourself.

Now if we should like to think of China as presently awaking to the discovery that there is a better way of doing things than through fighting, it's about time we prepared a demonstration of that better way. That is one reason, far from the only reason, why we could today scarcely make a better start toward getting together than to get together on the basis of treating a third party decently.—Milwaukee Journal.

SCIENTIFIC DEVICE FOR LOCATING SUNKEN TREASURE IN OPERATION. INSET: FRANK CRILEY, WORLD'S CHAMPION DEEP SEA DIVER.

By NEA Service
New York, Dec. 28.—Two million dollars in gold bullion!

This is the prize an expedition has set out from Norfolk, Va., to capture. The trawler Ripple, equipped with the most modern scientific devices, is off the Virginia Capes seeking the treasure that sank with the ship Merida ten years ago, says a current issue of Popular Science Monthly.

Aboard the trawler is Frank Criley, world's champion deep sea diver. Criley intends to search carefully in area of six square miles at the bottom of the sea. And he hopes to come up with his fists full of gold!

Science Searches Sea

Before Criley goes down the Ripple will search the sea bottom with scientific devices. One of these is a length of iron chain, insulated by a ten-foot section of cotton rope attached to a copper wire that leads to a delicate relay on the trawler's deck.

When the chain touches any conducting surface, as the iron hull of the treasure ship, it will cause a bell on the deck of the Ripple to ring.

Other Sunk Hoards

If the Ripple's quest is successful an effort will be made to remove other famous treasures from the sea bottom. Among these are:

Five million dollars in a wreck under Hell Gate, New York.
Eighty-seven million dollars in a Spanish galleon sunk off the Cornwall.
Vast sums on allied ships sunk by German submarines.

POETS' CORNER

ON LOOKING AT A PORTRAIT

With vacant stare across the fields of snow,
She seems to gaze into the yester-years;

Where memory, tho it saddens, still endears
The things that are no more of long ago—

And from those eyes that lend a kindly glow,
What pathos there! So calm, bereft of fears

That in her bosom with the salty tears
Abide forever and no more shall flow.

Has death some dear one taken with his dart
Kind soul? Would I but knew a soothing boon

To ease the torment of that aching heart,
And make you happy as the birds in June.

That o'er the sepulchre their songs impart
Where eager listeners silently commune.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Yes, the little house had begun to move, slowly at first, then faster and faster and faster. The children were almost too amazed to speak.

"Yes, it is an elevator," gasped Nick, finally finding his voice. "There is a bell ringing. Some one wanting to get on likely. W-w-h-a-t'll I do, Nancy?"

Nancy, who had been looking out of the funny little window at the pink and white topped orchard getting smaller and smaller below them, answered sensibly.

"Why stop it, of course. I s'pose you pull the thingumagum the other way."

So Nick gave the brake a jerk as Nancy suggested and, sure enough, the little house, or apple-tree elevator as we had better call it now, stopped instantly.

And there stood a fairy. The children knew right away that he was a fairy, although he was dressed more like a pirate, with a colored hanky tied 'round his head for a hat and high top boots.

The head had enough adventures with fairies in the Fairy Queen's Ninety Hundred and Ninety-Nine Kingdoms to know that the uglier these folk were dressed, the kinder their hearts were.

All except the Gnomes—they were horrid.

The stranger's first words showed that the children were right, about his heart anyway, for he called out, "Hello, children," in the kindest voice in the world or in the tree or in the sky or wherever it was they were.

"How do you do," said Nancy and Nick together.

"I'm glad to see that you are more polite than I am," said the little fellow (like most fairies, he was small), "but I always say, 'hello' so folks won't be afraid of me. It sounds more friendly."

"I'm Buskine in charge of The Land of Up-in-the-Air The Magical Mushroom telephoned that you were coming. May I come in? I want to talk to you about an adventure."

THIS PROXY WEDDING.

London, Dec. 28.—The wedding of Charles Phillips had progressed to the point where the registrar asked the bridegroom's full name. Then it was learned Phillips had delegated his brother to take his place while he went to France on important business. The wedding was postponed.

First income tax was passed by the United States congress in 1862.

Stiff? Sore?

A lame back, a sore muscle or a stiff joint often is considered too lightly by the sufferer. It should be remembered that backache, rheumatic pains, stiffness, soreness, swollen skin and puffiness under the eyes are symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble and these certainly should not be neglected.

Foley Kidney Pills

Keep the kidneys eliminated from the system by poisonous waste and acids that cause these aches and pains. They act promptly and effectively to restore weak, overworked or diseased kidneys and bladder to healthy, normal condition.

J. E. Simon, 400 E. 5th St., Portland, Ore., writes: "I was troubled with backache and kidney trouble. I used Foley's Kidney Pills and I have them to recommend them to anyone suffering in that way. As they are genuine."

MARKETS

CHICAGO WHEAT

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Weak development in the wheat market during the early trading today, owing largely to prediction of 25 million and 40 million bushel increase in the government crop report estimate opening quotations which varied about the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2 cents lower with May $1.16 3/4 to $1.17 1/2, and July, $1.04 3/4 to $1.14 1/2, were followed by moderate general setback and then by rally.

Subsequently dry weather reports from the southwest together with talk of a probable bullish showing as to acreage and condition of 1932 crop tended to heighten the market. Prices closed unsettled at 1-8 cents net to 5-8 cents decline. July was $1.05 to $1.05 5-8.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

SHE WEDS TWICE IN ONE MONTH!

(By Roy Gibbons)
Chicago, Dec. 28.—Married twice the same month! But to the same husband! That's the experience of Mrs. Leslie A. Lind, 20, social leader of Chicago's "younger set."

"The second ceremony was prompted by conscience," says the double bride.

"You see, Leslie and I eloped and were married by a justice of the peace. That lacked solemnity."

"And anyhow I like the thrill of doing a bride. So we decided to do it all over again, only this time in a church."

"Marriages made to order," as Mrs. Lind styles the kind performed in law offices, are ill omened starts in matrimony, she says.

"But a church ends lasting respect for the union to both man and woman."

"And now I'll get another honeymoon."

POOR PEGGIE

(Letters to Lovers)

By Winona Wilcox

Especially recommended as sure to interest young husbands are the letters printed today. They deal with hard facts about love and marriage and each seems to answer the other.

"Two men have proposed to me. I love one dearly, and would marry him without hesitation, but every one tells me I will regret the step. Friends say I never can reform the man by marrying him."

"The other man is the cleanest and best I have ever known. I respect him greatly, but I do not love him as I think a wife should love a husband."

"Friends tell me he will make me a happy woman. They say, 'Why turn down a chance to live comfortably, and marry a man who will cause you more sorrow than you ever have known?'"

"I have weighed the matter well. I have concluded that it is right to marry the one I love, the one who loves me."

"Surely other men have settled down after a few years of 'sowing their wild oats' and have made good husbands."

It is to be hoped that the young woman's future may justify her faith.

Unhappily, the sower of wild oats often finds his occupation amusing after marriage. In this connection:

"I am only 23 and many things puzzle me."

"Why is it that when a couple is safely married and the wife is struggling to make her home all she dreams it ought to be for the man she loves, and has borne children, why is it that the wife so often ceases to be attrac-

BRAVEST GIRL IN ALL FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 28.—Helene Jacquemin, 10, bravest little girl in France—and maybe in the world—has been awarded the French war cross, with palms.

When the Germans overran Helene's native village, she possessed information valuable to the invaders. But, facing a German military judge, she refused to speak. Even when struck by a lig infantryman.

Finally she turned her back on the judge. He was so surprised he freed her. And saved the lives of her mother and brother!

SENTENCE CUT ON LIFER; TO BE DEPORTED

Harry Kincaid Received Christmas Clemency—Was Soldier in France

Leavenworth, Kan., Dec. 28.—Harry Kincaid, "life term" at the federal penitentiary here received Christmas clemency in the form of commutation of sentence to 5 years, it was announced today by Warden W. L. Biddle.

Kincaid was convicted by court martial overseas on a charge of murder. He was a sergeant in an engineer detachment. Kincaid and the regimental "bully," a soldier, who is said to have served a term in Joliet for the murder of a Chicago patrolman, staged a gun battle as the result of many previous differences of opinion. According to reports, it was a case of who could shoot first. Kincaid killed the soldier, using an army automatic.

At the prison, Kincaid is said to be popular with the inmates, also with the officers.

Immigration officials arrived today at the penal institution to take into custody Charles Ashleigh, H. L. Trelease and Giovanni Baldazzi, who were extended executive clemency when Eugene V. Debs, former socialist candidate for president, and 21 other war prisoners were ordered released.

They will be deported.

BIG MEETING OF ELKS AT FARGO JAN. 2

Arrangements Made For Athletic Entertainment —
Many to Attend

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 28.—With the fight bug buzzing furiously over the entire country, fans of the northwest have shown great interest in the announcement that Fargo Lodge No. 209, B. P. O. E., will sponsor an athletic entertainment on Monday evening, Jan. 2, in the Fargo auditorium as the feature of the annual Homecoming Day program. A large class of candidates will be initiated during the afternoon and many members of the scattered tribe are expected to gather to witness the "fun."

Promoters for the lodge have announced that promises to be one of the most interesting boxing programs ever presented in the northwest, excluding the Twin Cities. Jack Bailey of Fargo, who recently sprang into the limelight by victories over Jack Mullon of Duluth, Al Lawrence of St. Paul and "Kid" Miller of Cleveland, is scheduled to cover the 10-round route with Les Stokes, formerly of Oakland, Calif., now of Fargo. Stokes boxed on the Pacific coast under the name of "Sailor" Bosco and defeated some of the best men in the game, including the immortal "Battling" Ortega. The men will box at 135 pounds.

As a semi-windup for the show, Les Lott of Fargo, the sensational lightweight of the northwest, and George Bowers of St. Paul, considered to be one of the best lightweight boxers in the Twin Cities, will mix in a 10-round bout. These boys traveled over the same route a short time ago and after a pretty exhibition, the newspapermen called it a draw. The youngsters are going to have an excellent opportunity to settle their differences in Fargo.

Two high class preliminaries have been arranged and indications are that the show will be very successful.

Sport a la Carte

Bob Meek of says Judge Landis has no right to take his hard-earned world series money. There are many who doubt the "hard earned."

Harry Greb wants to fight Dempsey for the championship. We wanted to be president.

Two pitchers needed money, so they got them—clips a guy. Who was eager to collect the dough. And cared not how or why. They had the fight doped out ahead. One was to miss the other. But when they got into the ring. The "other" yelled for mother.

Baseball magnates insist on the draft. Drawn from the wood, as it were.

Some eastern football teams have by this time learned their men were good basketball players.

Landis says that "Impres are human," which makes him eligible for pop bottles.

The softest job we know of this winter is caddy to an indoor golf bug.

Perpetual motion—money passing from fans to promoters.

Now, if they'd only eliminate the toe-hold, Zhyzsko might win every razzle-dazzle match by just shaking hands with his opponent.

Now who'd suspect we'd read it all wrong.

It's Centre's against Notre Dame!

MERRY ENGLAND IS SOCCER MAD

London, Dec. 22.—Professional football has as big a hold on the Britons as baseball has on the Americans.

Football is actually one sport the Britons can get excited about. From the last week in August to the first week in May football is the sole topic of conversation with the sport-loving Britons.

In comparison to the two major leagues in baseball, England has three united leagues with 86 teams. Scotland boasts a league of 22 teams. Ireland is also well represented.

Recent deals made by John McGraw makes it seem that he hasn't very much confidence in Rawlings and Kelly, who played such a big part in the 1921 world series. With the coming of Groth, Frisch will probably replace Rawlings at second. Since O'Connell, the $75,000 first sacker, will not report until 1923, Kelly is certain to be used another year at first.

Claims Young Schafer Is Better Player Than Dad

"Jake Schafer is a greater player than his dad."

That from Charles Tenne, manager of the new 13-2 champion, who also guided the affairs of his famous father.

Recently when interviewed young Jake said there were a lot of hard shots for him, but all were easy for his dad. That was a nice speech.

Tenne, however, says the son is a greater player than the father. Here is how he puts it:

"I consider young Jake a better player than his father ever was. His dad had the fault of not keeping in the best of physical condition, a fault of the billiardists of years ago.

"In technique, Jake, Jr., is the superior of his famous sire. As a masse player he is even greater than Horemans, the Belgian star.

"In Chicago he made a record run of 480, in Philadelphia 317, in Cleveland 308 and recently in New York 436.

"These runs not only stamp him as a greater player than his father, but the greatest billiard player in the world today.

OFFICIAL AMERICAN LEAGUE FIELDING RECORDS SEASON 1921

Boston led the league again this season in fielding with 978, maintaining the record established in 1916. A six year record of leadership in any single department of play is believed to be unique.

Philadelphia had the greatest number of put outs, 4200, Chicago the most assists, 2124, Chicago was also first in double plays, 155. St. Louis had only seven passed balls and New York eight. Chicago, Washington, St. Louis and Detroit each turned one triple play. This latter feature (four triple plays in one season) is also unprecedented and was undoubtedly made possible by the fact that never before were so many men on bases as was the case this year.

Prominent among the individual records is that of first baseman McInnis of Boston whose record for the year is 999, he being charged with but one error in 152 games. No other fielding records either in percentage or accepted chances per game were established though the scoring was unusually liberal. Indeed the hitting was so terrific that the averages of all infielders except first baseman is below normal.

For the third straight season second baseman James Dykes of Philadelphia leads in accepted chances per game for men playing his position regularly, being closely pressed for that honor by the veteran Collins of Chicago, who leads in percentage with 975. Dykes' record is 617 chances and Collins' 613 per game.

With one exception McInnis is also all rivals in accepted chances at first base with 1036 per game the leader being Shelly of Chicago with 1140. In ratio of assets Shelly was also first, 119 in 152 games with George Siler second with 108 in 138 games.

Howard Shanks, Washington, led the third basemen with 369 percentage in handling 571 chances in 154 games. His record of 349 chances at third was also the best. In addition to maintaining his great record of continuous playing shortstop Everett Scott of Boston, led the shortfielders with the handsome average of .972 and accepted almost six chances per game.

W. C. Jacobson, St. Louis, was first among the outfielders who played regularly with an average of .992. Jacobson with 375 put outs and 7 assists was third in chances accepted.

R. H. Veach of Detroit with 384 put outs and 21 assists was first, while the runner up was Rice of Washington with 350 put outs and 18 assists.

R. W. Schalk, Chicago, is again first among the catchers with S. F. O'Neill, Cleveland second and E. P. Gharrry, Washington, third. Schalk has now caught more than one thousand games in nine consecutive years.

OFFICIAL RUNS BATTED IN BY NATIONAL LEAGUE

The following are the Official Runs Batted In Records and other Miscellaneous Records of National League Players who participated in forty (40) or more games for the season of 1921:

Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis led in runs batted in with 126. George Kelly of New York was a close second with 122. While no player succeeded in batting in 100 runs in 1920, five players entered this select circle in 1921, as Ross Young and Frank Frisch of New York and Austin McHenry of St. Louis reached the mark in addition to Hornsby and Kelly.

George Burns of New York for the third successive year, led in obtaining the greatest number of bases on balls, 80.

Raymond Powell of Boston struck out the most times, 85. Captain Southworth of the same club struck out but 13 times in 141 games.

Jacques Fournier, St. Louis, and Samuel Bohne, Cincinnati, were caught out stealing the most times, 23 apiece.

Among the club leaders, New York batted in the most runs, 748, and also received the most bases on balls, 460. Philadelphia struck out the most times, 615. Cincinnati was caught out stealing the most times, 129.

Morvich stands out as the champion two-year-old of the year.

He takes his place as a super-thoroughbred with the unbeaten Colin of happy memory, and Man o' War, the horse of the century.

Morvich won twelve starts as a two-year-old. He has never yet gone down to defeat. That is a better record than Man o' War made as a two-year-old.

Man o' War was beaten once as a two-year-old. However it was largely the result of a fluke.

Miles Joy is the only other thoroughbred to dispute the claim of Morvich as the champion two-year-old. The two horses were entered in the same race several times last season, but each time the owner of Miss Joy withdrew his entry.

Will Morvich continue his great record as a three-year-old? Man o' War was greater as a three-year-old. Few of the great two-year-olds have continued to show class as three-year-olds.

Morvich has everything, and has never faltered when called on, so it seems he has a great chance to equal the deeds of Man o' War.

FOUR OF 'EM

Four men went up together in this play in the football game between Everton and Cardiff City, England. This was when Downs, an Everton back, guarded Brewster while he swatted the ball with his head. Some game!

"DUTCH" HOUSER NAMED ON GRID HONOR ROLL

Former Bismarck High School
Athlete Named on National Football Honor Roll

Edgar P. Houser, former Bismarck high school boy, is attracting national attention in football. Houser was counted on as one of the leaders in athletics in the Bismarck high school, and since he has been attending the University of Grand Forks has won particular attention in many ways for his ability in athletics.

Mr. Houser is a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Houser of Napoleon.

Edgar "Dutch" Houser of Napoleon, N. D., stellar tackle on the 1921 University of North Dakota grid team, and John Thomas of Jamestown, star fullback on the Chicago U. team, have been listed on the football honor roll for 1921, published in the January issue of "Outing."

Houser, selected as an all state tackle for the past three years, finds a place with such men as Luto of Yale, McGuire of Chicago, Slater of Iowa, Keck of Princeton, Kane of Harvard and many other celebrities of the gridiron.

Thomas, also selected for the North Dakota all state team several times during his career at Jamestown college, broke into conference circles during the past season at the University of Chicago and won great distinction by his performances in the Princeton and Illinois games.

Few basketball games have been reported between high school teams for the week between Christmas and New Years. Bismarck high school players, who have shown very well in games played to date, make the most extensive basketball trip yet reported, beginning play December 26 and meeting a team every night but Sunday. It plans to play ten games before returning for the beginning of the winter quarter. In order, the Bismarck team will play this week, Napoleon, Wishek, Ashley, Krum and Mission, and next week they will begin with a game against next year's state champions at Valley City and Meets Drake, Washburn and Wilton.

Griffon and Minot have announced interesting games in which the players of the present generation of high school stars will meet teams made up of the graduates. As one or two college stars usually are present on these alumni teams and the other men are usually the best of former years, these games are usually won by the high school quintette, but with the high school men learning a large amount of basketball from their opponents. A game between Michigan and Grand Forks also is on the card for the week.

December 28.
Grand Forks at Michigan.
Napoleon at Hunter.
Bismarck at Ashley.

December 29.
